weaker stomachs than others - it becomes more difficult for people to be exposed to procedures that are truly done for the animal's benefit.

"Mulesing is a perfect example of this.

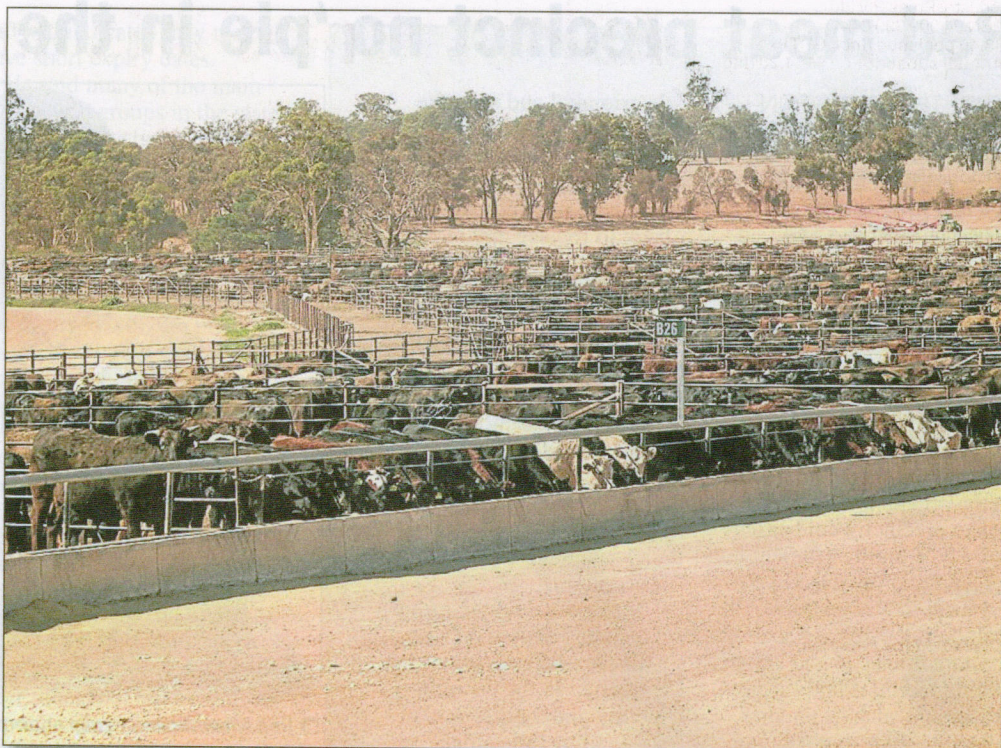

"The sheep really don't think too much of it.

"Weak-stomached humans do.

"I'm not ashamed of this procedure, and while I support breeding and other procedures that improve on mulesing, I also proudly support the use of mulesing due to the horrific alternative that often awaits unmulesed sheep.

"While RSPCA says they agree with this statement, many animal rights groups do not.

"Perhaps RSPCA could help farmers fight PETA on this front."
